In the mind of “Generation Z” entrepreneurs: The good and the bad news.

Abstract. In the seminar results from 2 recent studies is presented on the personality of Entrepreneurship students of Chalmers University of Technology in Sweden. The studies focused on increasing the bright and the dark side in the personality of the students. The first one was based on a psychoanalytical framework and builds on 18 in-depth interviews with entrepreneurship students. The second one was based on a questionnaire capturing personality traits such as: inner locus of control, affectivity, and the dark triad (narcissism, psychopathy and Machiavellianism). During the seminar, the good and the bad news are discussed, and why self-awareness among individuals with an entrepreneurial intent, may be crucial to the future growth of start-ups.

Il seminario sarà coordinato da Barbara Barbieri (barbara.barbieri@unica.it)
